

Jade Leung – HR Consultant

I have worked in a variety of industries including aviation, construction, and energy. I hold a Masters degree in Industrial and Organisational Psychology and have extensive experience in all aspects of HR including selection, talent management, leadership development, employee engagement, collective agreement bargaining and organisational culture change. I also have experience in health and safety management, employee wellbeing and behavioural safety.

Making a real and positive difference to a business is a key driver and I am conscious that a text book approach often does not work in the "real world". My approach is to partner with businesses to improve their performance through the delivery of innovative, tailored, and practical people solutions.
