

Melanie Navarro, HR Advisor

I have worked for more than 20 years in a variety of industries and multifaceted environments, including eight years in human resource management and administration. My passion for human resources began in the Philippines when I worked as the head of HR and Administration for an appliance manufacturing company. Prior to moving to New Zealand, more than four years ago, I served as Senior Manager for Human Resources for Deloitte Philippines. Both roles encompassed all aspects of human resources, including recruitment and selection, regulatory compliance, onboarding and training, remuneration and benefits, employee relations and communication, and employee services.

While in the Philippines, I also managed our family-owned business. The business continues to grow with a good and steady client base.

I have two Bachelor degrees – a BA in Psychology and a BSC in Marketing Management – and I have also completed my Master's Degree in Business Administration.

Outside of work, I love spending time with my two children.
